Unexplained Mystery

Cronin's Murderers Still Undiscovered.

THE POLICE ARE ALL AT SEA.

Woodruff's Confession Not Believed, and It is Reported That He Has Made Two More Confessions and is Now at Work on the Third—Nothing Startling Developed Before the Grand Jury.

CHICAGO, June 18.—A man, supposed to be Martin Burke, alias Delaney, was arrested in Winnipeg Sunday. An officer has been sent to bring him to Chicago His description tallies with that of Delaney in every respect. He was fairly well dressed and had the appearance of a well-to-do laborer. This is undoubtedly the man wanted.

Failed to Identify the Men.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Shortly before 10 o'clock the party consisting of Chicago Detectives Martin, Farrell and Hatfield, and Martinsen, the expressman, arrived in charge of Detective Von Gerichten at the Tombs. Warden Finley was summoned, and the authority for the identification shown. Preparations were then made for the process. Twenty prisoners were brought out and arranged on the west side. Parson Howard was on the upper end of the line. Maroney was brought out and placed fourth. While McDonald was being brought out Keeper McDermott ordered that Liverpool Jack be brought out and also placed in line.

This was done in order to give the two suspected men all the chance possible, as Jack is a solidly built Irishman. McDonald was then placed along side the man who shanghais sailors. Three keepers were then placed at each end of the line to keep everything quiet. During all these preparations the Chicago party were in the court yard just outside the new prison. When completed the first of those who was to try and identify the two men was called. It was Hatfield. He began looking over the line from Pearson Howard's end of it. He did not pay any attention to the sugar-maker but scrutinized the others carefully.

When he came to McDonald the latter looked his full in the face without any agitation whatever. Hatfield fixed his eyes on McDonald, but he passed along to the next. When he got down to where Maroney stood, every one present glued their eyes on both. Maroney looked right at him, apparently the most unconcerned of the lot. After a few seconds Hatfield's eyes wandered to the others. Then he carefully went over all the line again, but with the same result. There was a slight attempt at applause as Hatfield left the gallery and returned to the outside of the prison.

Martinson was the next one to try. He walked along the line at a fair pace. Twice he did this with the same result as Hatfield.

Then Throckmorton, the real estate agent who let out the rooms on Clark street, came in and went slowly up and down the line. There was a moment of intense excitement as he stopped almost in front of McDonald, and looked earnestly at his part of the line. The nervous tension was so great that when he passed out a number of those in the line involuntarily clapped their hands together.

After the three men had failed to identify Farrell the Chicago detective and Detective Von Gerichten, both of whom know the features of both prisoners from having been in their company so much during the past few days, passed along the line to see if Maroney and McDonald were really among the men They had only to glance along the line to see that such was the case. Then the party of five hurried away to the district attorney's office. The prisoners were put back in their cells, and the excitement was over.

Judge Andrews, in the supreme court, then rendered a decision discharging from custody Maroney and McDonald, who were arrested for alleged complicity in the murder of Dr. Cronin. The judge ruled that the evidence did not warrant their being held.

The Police All at Sea.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Interest in the Cronin murder is centered upon Winnipeg, where the suspect Burke is under arrest. Up to 10 o'clock yesterday the authorities of the state's attorney and police department were confident that in Maroney and McDonald they had two of the principals to the crime, and no sooner, however, had the United Press dispatches chronicled the fact that the Chicago witnesses had failed to identify the suspects, and that the court had ordered their unconditional release, than the lyre of the departments began upon another tune.

It was boldly stated that the authorities had been playing a bluff game with the New Yorkers; that the picture identified by the real estate agent, expressman and others was not that of either of the New York prisoners, but that of Burke, the Winnipeg suspect; that in short the extradition of Maroney and McDonald had been demanded, and the witnesses sent on to identy them all as a part of a bluff game, a detective being all the time on the track of Burke, and the fact that he was the mysterious Williams being all the time patent to those in charge of the case. In the effort to justify this position it was stated with equal gravity that the steps referred to had been taken simply to satisfy Lake Dillon and the Pinkertons, both of whom, according to this ingenious theory, were just as satisfied that Maroney and McDonald were the men wanted as the regular police officials according to their present position, were satisfied that they were not.

Outside of those now in New York every witness that positively mentioned Maroney's picture as that of Frank Williams has recognized the photo of Burke as that of the "only original." But in one of the cells of the Central station a man named Mulcahey is under lock and key, and it is reported among a section of the police that this man, too, is the one sought for. As to the grounds upon which his arrest is based, no information is forthcoming. The appearances indicate, however, that the authorities are utterly at sea, and that, as in the Tascott case, they are willing to send detectives to the farthest ends of the continent upon the mere suggestion that a probable clew may be developed.

Woodruff Still Confessing.

Woodruff, alias Black, is said to have made two more confessions and to be hard at work upon a third. The state's attorney's office is inclined to pin its faith to everything he says. The police, on the contrary, regard him as an unmitigated liar. He has full access to the newspapers and is allowed to talk with whomever he may please. Hence the fact that in every new confession he brings in names that he has never mentioned before. Experienced detectives say that had New York methods been adopted with him the true story of his connection with the tragedy would long ago have been known.

Before the Grand Jury.

The bulk of the evidence given before the grand jury yesterday was of a routine character. The most important witnesses were Desk Sergeant Montgomery, of the Chicago avenue station, and James D. Tuohy, the latter one of Alexander Sullivan's sureties. Under strong pressure Montgomery testified that the numerous telephone calls for Detective Coughlin which he answered in the latter's absence at the station, came not from Iceman Sullivan, as had been testified at the coroner's inquest, but from telephone 670. This is the number of the instrument in the law office of Windes & Sullivan, indicating that the latter was in frequent communication with the detective. Tuohy, who was a fellow passenger with Le Caron on the steamer that carried the informer to Liverpool under the name of Beach, was summoned to testify regarding the conversation he had with the spy during the passage. After his examination was concluded he emphatically refused to state what had transpired, and the grand jurors were correspondingly non-communicative.

Martin Burke Interviewed.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 18. — Martin Burke, the man arrested here for complicity in the Cronin murder, was seen in his cell last night by a representative of the United Press. He is an athletic looking fellow, and has a scar on the front part and left side of his head. His face expresses great determination, and he looks like a fellow with sufficient nerve to assist in carrying out the details of the foul deed of which he is suspected. In reply to questions, he gave his name as Martin Burke, and said he was from Chicago, and was on his way to the old country. On it being pointed out to him that this was not the way to the old country Burke seemed confused, and after some hesitation said he was just taking a look around before going. He further stated he had left Ireland four years ago, proceeding straight to Chicago, where he was employed by the corporation. He knew Cronin to see him, but was not personally acquainted with him.

Burke further stated that he was not a member of the Clan-na-Gael, and would claim British protection and refuse to go back with the Chicago officer. Burke, in purchasing a ticket to Liverpool, gave his name as W. J. Cooper. He does not look like an innocent man who was outraged over his arrest, but takes it as a matter of course. He arrived here on Saturday night, and put up at a second class hotel. He did not register. In his valise was found a felt hat supposed to have belonged to Dr. Cronin. The name inside the hat appeared to be blotted out with the aid of chemicals. The chief of police sought to restore the letters and characters to correspond with Cronin's name, which were clearly distinguished. The prisoner admitted that he had a brother in Chicago, so there is now little doubt he is one of the famous Williams brothers. Burke's solicitor, in response to a question, said the intention was to resist to the bitter end any effort to extradite the prisoner.

Woodruff's Stepfather Interviewed.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—An interview with Harry Black, the stepfather of Woodruff, is published in the Chronicle. He says: "Woodruff is a native of Canada. I formerly lived there, and held an important official position. For the past ten years I have resided in San Francisco, where I have been known and respected. Frank is a wild harum scarum sort of a boy. From his ninth year he has only brought misery to us. He has brought a cloud into my life, and nearly killed his mother by her worrying over him. Four years ago he paid us a visit here. He was sick, and we took care of him. When he recovered he stole his mother's gold watch and sold it. Frank is about 25 years of age. He is an innocent-looking boy. I could sit down and talk with him, and in three minutes he would be in tears, but the very next day he would steal some article out of the house and sell it. In fact the boy has always had a dual life. There is a good and a bad side to him. He never could resist temptation of any kind."

Drowned While Fording a Stream.

WABASH, Ind., June 18.—John Maple, a farmer, living near this city, attempted to ford a small stream last night, which was greatly swollen by hard rains. He was accompanied by his wife and three children, and a servant girl. In the middle of the stream the wagon upset, and Mrs. Maple and two of the children were drowned.

Work of Restoration

It is Rapidly Progressing at Johnstown.

THE DRIFT GREATLY REDUCED.

One Hundred Two Story Frame Houses to Be Put Up Immediately — Statement from the State Board of Health—Other News from the Devastated District.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 18.—Sentiment has been permanently supplanted by business men here. It began yesterday morning and the most heavily stricken citizen, both in family and fortune, has brought himself face to face with the inevitable, and in a meeting of a committee of business men asked Gen. Hastings to erect one hundred two-story business buildings on the public square for immediate occupancy. Gen. Hastings promptly replied that he would rush the work night and day and give them every facility that was in the power of the state and himself to confer.

City council will meet to-morrow afternoon to grant the right to build and work will begin Wednesday. The building will last until the business men are able to rebuild at their own expense. One hundred houses, ready to place upon their foundations, will arrive from Chicago on next Saturday and will all be put up by the middle of next week. Gen Hastings said: "We will put all the carpenters we can get to building new houses on lots from which buildings were taken by the flood as soon as the lumber arrives. It will begin to arrive this week, and I think Johnstown will look very much like a city next fall. When the houses are erected I shall furnish the householders with cooking utensils, cots, bedding and the necessary articles to begin with again, and when they are ready they can build better houses."

Clearing Away the Drift.

About 2,500 men were engaged in the clearing-up work in the five districts, and the outlying boroughs are beginning to look themselves again. The drift at the bridge was largely reduced yesterday. Dynamiting was temporarily suspended on account of complaint from citizens, but was resumed later in the day, but the quantity used in the charges was reduced. The commissary is supplied with sufficient rations for all hands for five days. Gen. Hastings' camp was moved to-day to the south side of Conemaugh river, and to-morrow the Fourteenth regiment will go into a permanent camp near Gen. Hastings' headquarters. It is probable that the Fourteenth regiment will be sent home this week, and another regiment ordered into service in its place.

Statement from the Board of Health.

Dr. Lee, of the state board of health, states that they are no conditions unfavorable to the health of citizens or soldiers here and no present possibility of any number of infectious diseases.

The Cambria Iron Works Starts Up.

The town was illuminated for the first time last night by the flames from the Cambria Iron company. The concern is rapidly getting into full blast.

Burning the Debris.

"We've got a channel in both streams now big enough for a steamboat to pass through," said Maj. Phillips. "With the dynamite and carbon oil, we will have the river clear by the end of the week. We will put 140 barrels of oil in the drift, and burn out all the loose debris."

The oil has been applied and there is now a blazing mass of rubbish that lights up the valley for miles.

There was an incipient riot among the Italian laborers last night, but it was soon quelled by the police.

Morgues Consolidated.

It has been decided to consolidate all the morgues, and hereafter there will be only one dead house. The consolidation is made possible by the fact that the number of bodies recovered now is growing smaller each day, and their advanced state of decomposition compels immediate interment.

Over Three Hundred Small Orphans.

Eleven children, whose parents lost their lives in the flood, and who are suffering from exposure, will be sent to Atlantic City by the Children's Aid society. Others will be sent every few days, and all will remain until they are fully recovered. Then they will be provided with homes. There over 300 children too small to help themselves to be cared for.

Governor Beaver Condemned.

Governor Beaver will join the relief committee at Lockhaven to-morrow morning and come with it to this city to-morrow afternoon. Johnstown people are highly indignant because Gov. Beaver has not yet taken action relative to their suggestion concerning the appointment of a successor to John Fulton on the commission.

Narrow Escape from Lynching.

BATAVIA, O., June 18.—Between thirty and forty of the friends of John Cooper, the young murdered man at Milford, came to this place last night and demanded the negro who committed the murder. They were shown through the jail, but Sheriff Totman had received a telegram of warning from Milford, and had left some hours before for Georgetown, O., where the murderer was secured. The crowd was shown through the jail, and finding it empty bid Deputy Sheriff John West good night and left in disgust.

Indicted for Murder.

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 18.—The grand jury has found an indictment against McDow for the murder of Capt. Dawson. The trial will begin June 24.

ROBBING THE FARMERS.

Some of the Officials of the Lake Shore Road Placed in a Bad Light.

CHICAGO, June 18.—A special to The Herald from New Carlisle, Ind., says: The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad, or a certain set of its officials, seem to have been for a long time engaged in systematic and deliberate robbery of the toiling farmers. By the free use of false weights they have been regularly swindling the grain dealers all along the line of their road at this station, and apparently at every other one on the line, the surplus grain out of which they have swindled the farmers, accumulates in the ware houses and once a year the houses are cleaned out and this surplus is shipped to Toledo.

Sometimes it amounts to nearly a car load. Who gets this grain or the money for it is a question which the road will have to answer before the interstate commission. It is not believed that the higher officials of the road are actually aware of what does become of this grain, but the indications certainly point to a guilty knowledge on the part of certain officers of the grain department.

COLLISION ON THE LAKE.

A Barge and Schooner Come Together Near Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., June 18.—A collision occurred yesterday between the barge Keeweenaw and the schooner John Martin, below the Nebish rapids at 11 a. m. The Keeweenaw was lumber-laden in tow of the steam barge John E. Potts, homeward bound, from Baraga for Chicago. The Martin, coal laden, upward bound was in tow of the steam barge City of Cleveland.

The tows were passing one another on the starboard side when the tow barges sheered, striking one another on the port bows. The Martin lost her jib-boom, bowsprit, and all head gear. The Keeweenaw lost her two spars and standing rigging, and filled with water. The crew of the Keeweenaw are encamped on the beach awaiting orders. Keeweenaw is valued at $10,000.

A LOUISVILLE TRAGDY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 18.—A shooting occurred yesterday near the corner of Floyd and Ormsby avenues, which resulted in murder. Theodore Prince, John Taylor and Joseph Clark, all colored, employes of Haertz's brickyard, were playing coons about noon.

Taylor got tired and came to quit the game, when a dime fell from his pocket. Clark claimed it, and shot Taylor, when he refused to give it up. Prince then interfered and was also shot. Taylor shortly afterwards died at the hospital. His murderer, Clark, is still at large.

Attempted Train Wreckers Sentenced.

CANTON, O., June 18. — Yesterday morning Frank Ryan and Frank Sadler, under indictment on two counts for attempting to wreck the Fort Wayne limited near this city on April 2 and 3, pleaded guilty in common pleas court on the first count, and were sentenced to ten years each and pay costs of prosecution. On the second count they were given five years and a fine of $1,000 each each. They confessed that their object in wrecking the train was plunder.

Destructive Forest Fires.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 18.—An Ellensbury, Wy. T., special states that heavy forest fires are burning on the east side of the Cascade mountains. Large quantities of fir timber have been destroyed. The roar of the flames can be heard for miles. The heavens are brilliantly illuminated by the glow. The lumbermen say millions of feet of timber have been burned. Several small bridges on the Northern Pacific railroad have been burned, delaying trains.

Montana's Constitutional Election.

HELENA, Mont., June 18.—The canvassing board has finished its work of counting the vote cast at the constitutional election. The returns show that thirty-eight Democrats, thirty-five Republicans, one Labor and one Independent were elected. Both the Labor and Independent men have formerly officiated with the Democrats, and the latter count on their help on all party questions.

Attempted Suicide.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 18.—Major J. W. Roden, of the Fourth United States artillery, attempted to commit suicide by drowning last evening near Sayers wharf. He was rescued in an unconscious condition by some yachtsmen who saw his body floating about the harbor. It is thought that he will recover. Maj. Roden has been very despondent recently on account of ill-health.

Sitting Bull Will Not Sign.

STANDING ROCK AGENCY, June 18. — Sitting Bull, the Sioux chief, is slowly growing stronger. Regarding the proposed opening of the reservation, he said he had never signed a treaty, and never would. There is every reason to believe that the commissioners will succeed in opening the reservation, but they must do it without the aid or consent of Sitting Bull and his friends.

Marriage Too Much for Him.

CHICAGO, June 18.—August Swanson, 30 years old, and employed as hostler, committed suicide this morning. Swanson took the poison while he kept a friend covered with a revolver. Swanson had been married but three weeks. Ever since his marriage he had been drinking heavily.

Death of Daniel Webster's Friend.

NEW YORK, June 18.—George Hillier, for many years custodian of the custom house building, died this morning at his residence, aged 76. He was formerly a page on the floor of the United States senate and was appointed to the custom house at the request of Daniel Webster in 1844.

Heavy Rain Storms.

Great Damage Done From Overflowed Streams.

A NUMBER OF TOWNS FLOODED.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., June 18.—Groundless reports were sent out from here yesterday regarding loss of life at Uniontown. There were heavy rains Friday and Saturday and portions of the town were flooded, but there was no loss of life and very little damage. The damage in this city is much greater than that at Uniontown.

At Topeka the upper valley of the Walnut is flooded. On Saturday night the river came up so suddenly that a family named Graham started from their home for the highlands, and the mother and babe were drowned. Grain fields are flooded, and much damage will result.

At Wichita the flood destroyed large sections of the Missouri Pacific track, and carried away twelve residences. Four farmers were drowned near Eldorado.

At Augusta the Santa Fe tracks were washed out, and a railroad bridge washed away. It is estimated that over a million bushels of wheat are destroyed at the latter place and vicinity.

Crops Greatly Injured.

IOLA, Kan., June 18.—The streams in Allen county have been unusually high all the spring, and the heavy rains of Saturday night caused the Neosho river and its principal tributaries to overflow, flooding the bottoms for a mile or more on either side. There has been no loss of life or of live stock, but it is feared that hundreds of acres of wheat, which was just ripening will be almost a total loss, while the submerged corn and other crops will be greatly damaged. The St. Louis, Wichita and Western railway bridge across Rock creek, east of this place, has been undermined and is only prevented from going down stream by the iron track. On this side of the bridge nearly a quarter of a mile of track has been washed away. West of the city a large number of small bridges and culverts along the wagon roads have been greatly damaged, and it is feared the river bridge has been seriously undermined. The water reached its highest point at 3 o'clock Monday morning, since which time it has been slowly receding. It is now hoped the worst is over.

Another Flood in Pennsylvania.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 18.—Heavy rains prevailed again in this section yesterday afternoon, causing the streams to rise rapidly. An eight-foot flood in Lycoming creek swept away the trestling of bridges Nos 9 and 18, at Bodines and Ralston, on the Northern Central railway, completely cutting off communication on that road between this city and Elmira. All trains on the Northern Central between these two points are again tied up and will be for several days until the gaps can be closed.

Heavy Rains in Florida.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 18.—Heavy rains have done considerable damage throughout the state. A tornado at Lake City made a swath one hundred feet wide destroying much property. The South Florida railway track is submerged in several places. It is rumored that the steamer H. B. Plant was partly wrecked at Blue Springs.

In Western New York.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 18.—The heaviest rains for years fell Sunday night and Monday morning in western New York. Several villages suffered considerable losses, and railroads were washed out in several places.

Miners Burned by a Gas Explosion.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 18.—Four Polish miners were terribly burned by an explosion of gas in the Nottingham mine of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company, at Plymouth, yesterday, and it is thought they will all die from their injuries. Their names are: Michael Andrew, Simon Novalka, John Kutschki and Joseph Taylor. The accident was caused by the ignorance of the men, who went into the chamber filled with gas, without first testing the air.

Boys Eaten by Wolves.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 18.—Two children, aged 10 and 12 years, of Edward Bachus, living at Rosier, went fishing last Thursday. They failed to return at night and searching parties were organized to look for them. Their bones were found Friday evening near a ledge of rocks that had long been known as Wolf's Den. A band of timber wolves have used this section for years, and it is thought the boys were killed and eaten by the animals.

Burned to Death in a Boarding House.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 18.—A fire occurred in Bolton's mill, near Newaygo, on Saturday, burning it. A boarding house where the employes lodged adjoined the mill. This, too, caught fire, and Alouzo Delacey and Ole McLenny perished in the flames. Another man sustained probably fatal injuries by jumping from a window. The fire is thought to be incendiary.

Bar Association Picnic.

PITTSBURG, June 18.—The Pittsburg Bar association held their annual picnic at Rock Point yesterday. By resolution they donated $1,000 to the erection of a library building and the purchase of a law library for the attorneys of Johnstown. They will call on every bar association in the state to take similar action.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

A Man Butchers His Wife and Attempts Suicide at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, June 18.—An awful crime was discovered in a house on Turner alley yesterday afternoon. A woman was found lying dead in bed with her head almost severed from her body. Her husband and slayer was found pacing the room of death wringing his hands and suffering with remorse that cannot be described for his awful deed.

The hand that guided the instrument of death against the wife, weakened when it was turned against himself. The razor, covered with the fresh blood of the murdered woman, was twice drawn across the throat of the murderer, but it failed to inflict mortal wounds. For nearly two days and nights the uxoricide existed in the room with the corpse, and in the interval, instead of finishing the job as far as he was concerned, spent the time in washing and bandaging the wounds inflicted on himself.

The scene of the horrible crime was 79 Turner alley, a small thoroughfare running south from Harrison avenue, between McLean avenue and Riddle street. No. 79 is a two-story brick house, owned by J. H. Taphorn. The second floor is occupied by a widow named Stegner.

Just one week ago yesterday an old couple moved into the first floor, consisting of two rooms and a kitchen. It was Nicholas Perrell and his wife Anna. All during last week Perrell was about home most of the time. The neighbors were, of course, curious about the couple and every move he made was closely watched. On Sunday he appeared in the yard wringing his hands and apparently suffering from some mental trouble. He was noticed several times during the day and also in the evening. He prepared his meals, however, and but little attention was paid to him.

One thing that caused comment was the fact that Mrs. Perrell did not appear during the day or evening. Mrs. Stegner, the upstairs tenant, noticed this particularly, as she could tell when the old lady was about by her peculiar shuffling walk, caused by her infirmity before mentioned.

Yesterday evening Perrell appeared as usual, and seemed to be in deep trouble. He would pace up and down the bedroom for a while and then go out into the yard. From Saturday night until Monday noon all the window shutters were closely barred.

About 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon the shutters of the bedroom were thrown open, and a fearful stench was at once discernible. After opening the blinds Perrell walked into the yard and seated himself on the kitchen step. He was wringing his hands and constantly muttering to himself.

An officer seeing him asked him the cause of the trouble, whereupon he confessed to having killed his wife. Upon investigation the officer found it only too true, and at once arrested the murderer and placed him in jail.

The President's Sunday.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The yacht Restless, with the president, Secretarys Blaine and Wannamaker on board, returned to Washington at 10:15 yesterday morning. The president drove immediately to the executive mansion. During Sunday the yacht anchored off St. Mary's, Md., and the presidential party attended service at the Episcopal church there and saw Bishop Paret, of Baltimore, confirm a class. Later in the day the party visited the St. Mary's female seminary and left for Washington in the evening. A number of persons from Leonardtown hearing of the president's presence at St. Mary's, came over to that place to see the distinguished visitor.

Murdered by a Music Teacher.

KIRKWOOD, W. Va., June 18.—William Miller, a farmer, is dying from the effects of knife wounds inflicted by George Sell, a music teacher, at Stemple's Ridge. A few evenings ago Sell was conducting a song when a son of Mr. Miller interrupted, and a fight ensued. Sell whipped young Miller. The father interfered and Sell disembowelled the elder Miller with a knife.

An Old Grudge Settled With a Pistol.

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 18.—Yesterday afternoon William Hunter shot and dangerously wounded Lee Young, in this city. The difficulty was the result of an old grudge. The ball entered the left arm above the elbow, passed through and lodged in the side. Hunter was arrested and jailed.

Resigned on Account of Ill Health.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Albert Fink, chairman of the executive committee of the Trunk Line association, resigned last Saturday on account of ill health. The resignation takes effect July 10. Mr. Fink intends to sojourn in Europe, in the hope of regaining his health.

Probable New Bishop.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 18.—It is reported here that Dr. Zardetti, formerly at the head of St. Francis Catholic college in this city, now of Dakota, will be made Bishop of Winona.

One Man Responsible.

MORA, Minn., June 18.—The United States troops sent to the scene of the reported Indian trouble will leave for Fort Snelling at 4 o'clock. A man arriving from Mille Lacs lake this morning says he was at Briggs' when the telegram asking aid was sent. Briggs was excited, but fearing harm to himself from the Indians, he signed the name of Michelson to the telegram and despatched the latter to Mora with it. Briggs alone is apparently responsible for the expense of transporting the troops here.

Samoan Woman in Trouble.

SAN FRANCISCO June 18.—Lealy Maliti, the only native Samoan woman in this country, is in great grief at her home in Alameda, because of the mysterious disappearance of her husband, Alexander O. Willis, a young American contractor and builder. She fears suicide, but his friends say that he became hopelessly involved by large building contracts and has fled to Australia.

AURORA, N. Y., June 18.—The corner-stone for the new Wellesley college for women was laid yesterday, and among those present were Chief Justice Fuller and wife.

Jealousy Leads to Murder and Suicide.

DENVER, Col., June 18.—At Lake City, Col., to-day, Newton G. Moore, an old-time fighter, murdered his young wife and then blew out his own brains. He was insanely jealously of his wife.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Currency sixes, 118 bid; four coupons, 129¼ bid; four-and-a-halfs, 106¾ bid.

There was considerable pressure to sell stocks in the early dealings, under which prices declined ¼ to ¾ per cent., the latter in Missouri Pacific. Rock Island were especially pressed for sale and recorded the sharpest declines. The former sold down 1¾ per cent. and the latter 1¾ per cent. by 11 o'clock. In the hour to noon the market was extremely dull, but more support was extended the list. New York and New England, and St. Paul were especially strong, and advanced ¾ and ¼ per cent. respectively. The improvement was not fully maintained, however, and at this writing the market is weak again.

—Harvey Rhodes, after a short trip to Johnstown, stopped off and is the guest of Mrs L A Jones of this city for a short time, before returning to his home at Indianapolis

—Leonard Williams, who resides three miles southeast of Green Camp received a bad foot wound while cutting wood Wednesday, 12th inst The cut is five inches in length, almost severing the foot, requiring a number of sutures to properly approximate the edges Dr Clark was called and reports Mr. Williams doing as well as could be expected, though very weak from loss of blood.

—An exciting runaway occurred at Owen Monday A young and blooded horse belonging to Tom Miller, who lives southwest of Marion, broke from a hitching rail in that place, and with buggy attached started for its home. The animal lunged across the railroad in front of a fast moving passenger train just in time to escape, but the buggy was caught by the pilot and was knocked into smithereens, portions of it being carried a quarter of a mile The horse escaped without a scratch, being entirely freed from the buggy by the force of the stroke of the engine

Patronize Home Merchants Every Time

[Lima Gazette]

The Indian boy taken got away with the crowd, on the square, last night, and left the handkerchief peddler high and dry and alone, on his store box, without a "sucker" The rush for the dried willow leaves was not as great as to hear the duets and solos, that the street venders got off in sawmill melody, and nerve straining effect It is astonishing that people will run to meet a man who wants to humbug them but "they all do it." Our citizens will find a better quality of the goods sold on the streets at less figures in our stores than can be bought of these fakirs and will aid in building up our city instead of giving it to strangers Patronize your home merchants every time and give street venders who pay no taxes a wide berth

A Fire Alarm

Just before noon today an alarm of fire was sounded, which investigation proved to be at the N Y, P and O water tank A blaze had caught on the roof and a few buckets of water put it out before the fire department was in shape to work

When the news first came as to the location a good many silently gloried in the tardiness of our "swift" fire department, hoping that the old depot would be on fire and totally burned They were disappointed—the old depot is good for a century more

Professor Richards of Yale college has made a study of the records of 2,425 students in order to determine, if possible, the relations of athletics in Yale to scholarship The general result is that the athletes fall slightly behind the non-athletes in scholarship but not so much as to demand a suppression of such exercises. In some branches of athletic exercises the students who engage in the sports are above the average of the non-athletes in scholarship.

The cat's eye stone is found in Ceylon. It is always cut in a highly convex form, and has a remarkable play of light in a certain direction, resembling a drop of water or the the pupil of an eye moving about inside of it, or a band of light floating on its surface, ever shifting, like a restless spirit, from side to side as the stone is turned The people regard it with awe and wonder, and, believing it to be the abode of some genie, dedicate it to their gods as a sacred stone.

A simple stove for warming rooms by means of solar heat has been contrived by Professor E. S. Morse. It consists of a shallow box, having a bottom of corrugated iron and a glass top. This device is placed outside the building, where the sun can shine directly into it. The rays pass through the glass and are absorbed by the metal, heating it to a high temperature and warming the air of the box. The air, which on sunny days rises to 90 degs. Fahrenheit, is conveyed into the room to be heated.

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put all caring for their health—and because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a rapid pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then too we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicines, and the physicians we first consult, and often blunder into one there is a doctor

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper life preserver and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is summed down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it

But they do not know How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names guess that the New style Vinegar Bitters speak for themselves?

They do not know, of course unless they have the courage to try the New style. It stimulates out a tangled up system in a very short while and those who buy it once buy it always

Why don't you try it to-day? It is sent out by a responsible house and is exactly as represented It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle Try it once and you will never be afraid of anything in your line Your druggist may not have it but he will order it for you Be sure it says New style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle Before you take it Try it and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

Free from alcohol and opium composed of expensive herbs and roots, with a fine, delicate flavoring

KID GLOVES can easily be cleaned by first putting the glove on the hand, then take a clean piece of flannel, some tepid water and a cake of IVORY SOAP, wet the flannel slightly and rub it lightly on the soap, then rub the soiled parts of the glove with the soaped flannel. After the dirt is removed, rub all parts of the glove with a damp piece of clean flannel; remove the glove, stretch it lengthways and lay aside to dry. Ordinary soap contains too much alkali, which will turn the color of the kid.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

A Perfect Laxative

should be mild, prompt, and pleasant, with no griping or purgative effects. It should also incite the liver to action, aid digestion, and relieve the kidneys. Like nothing else, Paine's Celery Compound is a perfect laxative, and cures constipation where all other remedies fail.

"As a gentle laxative," Paine's Celery Compound is surely without a peer. I think I ought to know, since I have tried remedy after remedy for about five or six years and have found nothing that equals it in my case of costiveness."
J. B. JENKINS, Teacher, Cloyd's Creek, Tenn.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

POSTMASTER GENERAL WANAMAKER AND THE AMERICAN LORDS.

The Merchant Cabinet Officer's Misfortune in Not Being a Scribe—Clarkson the Imperturbable—Candy and Antiquarianism—Kentucky Girls and Horses.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, June 17.—There is no more interesting man in the cabinet that Postmaster General Wanamaker. Activity, mental and physical, is one of his most striking characteristics. Mr. Wanamaker likes to be on his feet, and receives most of his visitors at the big postoffice building in a standing posture. Admitting a dozen or more persons to his room at a time, he moves from one to the other, listening to what they have to say and giving prompt and decided replies. Notwithstanding his lack of experience in public business, it is said he can grasp a point about as quick as any man that has ever held the office. Mr. Wanamaker sees everybody who calls, and has some democratic ideas about the equality of man in the office of the postmaster general. These ideas put into practice came near, some time ago, to getting him into a pretty row with a number of United States senators. The average United States senator has a large, not to say somewhat exaggerated, idea of his own dignity and importance, and this is not to be wondered at considering that from time almost unknown the chief officers of the executive branch of the government have made a practice of bowing down and worshiping the most august and powerful representatives of the national legislature. It has been the rule of the departments that no hour, no door, was to be kept from a senator.

But the new postmaster general, while following precedent to the extent that senators were given a sort of prior right in the matter of admission to his sanctum, received them, when they were once in, as he received everybody else; that is to say, standing, with conversations short and to the point and decisions as prompt as possible. The senators did not like this, as they had been in the habit of basking in special attention at the office of the postmaster general, with the inner or private room of that functionary open to them, chairs provided and time given up to their entire satisfaction. Several senators were so nettled by these stand up receptions that they compared notes, and for a time there was serious talk among a number of them of ways and means of "disciplining" the postmaster general. But the talk came to naught, partly because it was too small a thing to kick up a row about, and partly because the postmaster general, after the first rush of business was over, relaxed his method sufficiently to enable him to give private and sitting audience to all the senators who honored him with their presence. In this connection a curious fact, not generally known, is worth mentioning. It is generally believed that none but Republican senators are interested in the distribution of offices under a Republican administration, and yet Postmaster General Wanamaker tells me that since taking possession of his office he has had a greater number of calls from Democratic than from Republican senators.

In the corridors of the postoffice department a large crowd of men is always to be seen during business hours awaiting a chance to see the postmaster general or his first assistant. Occasionally this crowd sees a smooth faced man, of medium height, attired in a suit of solemn black, and looking as cool as a polar bear in the most sweltering of days, rush through the corridor from one room to another. The man races around as if his life, or at the very least his employment, depended upon his activity. He goes through the swinging doors with a bang, and as he disappears somebody says, "That's him—that's Wanamaker." The postmaster general is very light on his feet, and likes nothing better than a chance to skip up or down stairs. He seems always in a hurry, but never hurried. One of his fads is a sort of schedule of working hours. He does not put this on paper, but carries it in his mind, and when he begins work in the morning knows pretty well how each hour of the day is to be spent. This habit is so strong with him that he unconsciously divides his hours into sections and strives to do such and such a thing, or see one of his many callers, in each of these subdivisions. A favorite expression of his is: "Glad to see you. Am very busy, but want to know what you have to say. Have three minutes to spare, and if you will make good use of the time we can get through nicely." This is so frank and practical that it offends no one, perhaps a United States senator or two alone excepted, and pleases a majority of the visitors.

In his elegant home on I street, formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Whitney, the postmaster general continues his activity of mind and body. Callers there often wait a moment or two in the parlor till the servant comes down with the remark, "Be down in a minute or two, sir," only to look up in the next instant to see the postmaster general before them. Occasionally he beats the servant, for it is his habit to run down stairs at every opportunity. Mr. Wanamaker is very kind to newspaper men, and his nimble mind often skips away from his business and enables him to think of that of his visitors in a way quite unexpected. After answering the questions put to him he sometimes turns to writers and remarks: "Now, that is all I know about that, at least, that is all I can tell you. The other day the thought occurred to me that this would be a good thing to write up, and if the suggestion is worth anything to you, I'm sure you're welcome." Then he throws out his hint. As a general thing these suggestions of the postmaster general are most excellent, and the press corps has reached the conclusion that Mr. Wanamaker would have made a rattling good newspaper man if he had not been so unfortunate as to become a millionaire merchant. He would also have made a good pedestrian or baseball player, and it is doubtful if there are many fields of endeavor in which this versatile, masterful man would not have excelled.

An incident which cleverly illustrates the status enjoyed by newspaper men in Washington occurred the other day. It was in the office of Secretary Noble. A newspaper man of considerable prominence had never met the secretary, and happening to mention this fact in the presence of a senator, the latter kindly volunteered to take the journalist up to the interior department and introduce him. Thinking it could at least do no harm to be introduced by a prominent Republican senator the newspaper man gladly accepted the offer, and an appointment was made for the following afternoon at 2, when the usual rush of callers is over. At the appointed hour the senator and his friend were at the secretary's office, and were promptly admitted by Private Secretary Hume. The introduction was pleasantly made, and a delightful little chat followed, in course of which Secretary Noble, in commenting on the arduous labors of his office in the reception of hordes of callers, said the necessity which had arisen therefrom of guarding carefully his time, said: "By the way, senator, it was a lucky thing for you that you happened along here just at the moment our friend of the press was waiting to see me. If you had come alone you would not have been admitted, but having a newspaper man with you secured you an audience. My doors are never closed to newspaper men, while senators must come within certain hours."

Senator Evarts is one of the very few members of the house of lords still remaining in town. The senator has a lovely home here, and his library is so well stored with books and documents that the studious old man is loath to leave it. It is, however, a rented house, with rented furniture and bedding. Senator Evarts owns nothing in the establishment but the clothing worn by himself and family and his precious books. Mr. Evarts relates with much zest a little story of his adventures with the dignified and important clerk of the state department. On his way to call on Secretary Blaine the other day he wished to make some inquiry, and as he was passing through the corridor accosted a young man whom he thought he had seen in the department, saying to him: "I beg your pardon, sir, but are you not a clerk in the state department?" The young person thus addressed stopped short, gazed at the great statesman who was once the head of the department and whose fame is as broad as the two hemispheres, and in a tone in which disgust was mixed with wounded pride replied: "No, sir, I am not. I am not a clerk in the state department.' I am an attache of the foreign office." Senator Evarts was so astounded by this display of dignity and Anglomania that he says he actually forgot the inquiry which he had intended making of the young person, and walked on quite crushed.

Speaking of the crowds at the postoffice department reminds me that the man of the administration who performs the most hard work, and does it with the most ease and thoroughness, is First Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson. For more than three months he has been engaged from 9 to 3 each day, with but one or two days of intermission, at that most trying of all work, that which makes greatest demands upon the nervous forces and the patience, the reception of business callers. All day long and every day the line of humanity, male and female, black and white, important and unimportant, files past his chair. He is the most imperturbable of officials, and for all has the same manners and the same prompt and decisive reply. He never grows tired of his task and never complains. The nearest approach to a grumble that was ever known to escape his lips was the putting of two conundrums, based on his recent experiences. The conundrums, which remain unanswered, were: "Why does the man with a bad breath persist in standing within two or three inches of your face?" and "Why does the man with a still, small voice always stand about ten feet away from you and talk in his throat?"

Mr. Clarkson is a lover of fine horse flesh, and during his recent visit to Col. Goodloe, in Kentucky, filled his stables with blue grass thoroughbreds. Every evening, from 6 to 8, Mr. Clarkson and his son, Croker, ride through the pretty suburbs of the capital, both being enthusiastic horsemen and gallant riders. The first assistant postmaster general has fallen in love with Kentucky, and if Kentucky were not a Democratic state he could probably be induced to take up his residence there. He and Col. Dudley, Gen. Algor and one or two others had as the guests of Col. Goodloe a fine opportunity to study Kentucky's famous hospitality, and they unite in the declaration that for horses and pretty women and hearty welcome the blue grass country beats the world. Col. Goodloe has six beautiful daughters, every one of them an enthusiastic horsewoman, who can ride like the wind, and is not afraid of anything equine. The first day he was there Col. Dudley ruined himself beyond redemption by spanking of "the blind knees of a horse," and during the remainder of his visit the gallant colonel was under a cloud. No man that talks of the blind knees of a horse can expect to hold up his head in the presence of the belles of Kentucky, where little girls play with colts instead of dolls, and where the graves of favorite horses are reverently decorated with flowers and wreaths on Memorial day.

"Kentucky is the greatest country on earth," says Mr. Clarkson. "The people there spend half their time talking horse, and the other half eating good dinners. Nobody is ever in a hurry in Kentucky, and when there is a big dinner on hand all work and all business stops. They hang guests a hundred miles to a dinner party. If there are any people in this world that enjoy life, it is the people of Kentucky."

Gunther, the Chicago candy man, who is known all over the world as a collector of antiquities, and who is the principal promoter of the scheme to set up Libby prison as a war museum in Chicago, was recently in Washington. While here he picked up a number of valuable relics, as he picks up things wherever he goes. Gunther has spent a fortune for old books, letters and relics, and now has the greatest collection in America. One of the articles bought by him while here was a letter written by Guiteau. Mr. Gunther says it is a singular fact that Guiteau letters are now scarce and valuable, being highly prized from the collector's point of view all over the world. There is an excellent market for Guiteau relics in Europe, and even in Asia. The assassin's was surely a shot that was heard around the world. While in Washington Mr. Gunther also secured a letter of Abraham Lincoln's, to add to his already large collection of Lincolniana. It is a remarkable fact that letters by Lincoln are four times as scarce and valuable as letters by George Washington, and Mr. Gunther accounts for this by the fact that while Lincoln was a great public man but four or five years, all of that time too busy to write many letters, Washington was conspicuous in public life for nearly half a century, and was, moreover, much more inclined to letter writing than the emancipator. In a very few years any good letter written by the hand of Abraham Lincoln will command a high price.

Hay and Nicolay, the Lincoln historians, say there are a hundred stories about Lincoln to one letter or memorandum worthy of credence. A large part of their labor in writing this notable history of Lincoln and his times lies in the necessity for constant vigilance in winnowing the wheat from the chaff. For every story and incident that they have been able to verify and use a hundred have been rejected as worthless because imaginary, or so badly distorted as to be unsafe material. A somewhat remarkable feature of their work is the necessity, constantly arising, for sifting down upon the pretensions of this man or that concerning the part played by the ambitious narrator in Lincoln's career. "There are in this country today," says one of the historians, "probably a hundred men who believe they are entitled to credit for suggesting to Lincoln the emancipation proclamation, and for convincing him of the wisdom of that step.

"So with a thousand other incidents of Mr. Lincoln's career. The trouble seems to have arisen in the fact that Lincoln was always willing to listen to advice, but in the end almost invariably exercised his own judgment. There are in circulation, and we have had brought to our attention so many doubtful stories of Lincoln that we have been compelled to adopt the broad rule that we will use nothing that is unsupported by corroborative letters or memoranda. Some of our good friends think this is depriving the world of a great fund of information about Lincoln, but we are writing history and not fiction."

THE DONKEY AND THE TRAVELER.

A Belated Traveler on the king's highway was made terribly Anxious at a certain spot by Fearful Sounds. He went forward very Timidly, ready to turn and Fly for his Life at any moment, but all of a sudden discovered that the Dreaded Sounds had been uttered by a Donkey.

"See here, you Miserable Beast, what are you trying to get at, anyhow?" demanded the Traveler.

"Why, it is a case of Self Sacrifice," replied the Donkey. "Instead of Standing in my stall I come out and brave the Inclement Weather to cheer the belated Traveler with my voice and let him know that Friends are near."

"You old dunderhead, but it is your voice which adds Terror to the mud and darkness! Go Hence and let up!"

Moral—The Blunders of Friends are more to be Dreaded than the Machinations of Enemies.

HERCULES AND THE WOODMAN.

It is related that Hercules was passing through a Forest one day when he came upon a Woodman who was Idle and Inquired:

"Have you amassed Wealth until you no longer have to work?"

"Nay, my friend," was the answer, "but this Log needs Moving, and I have not the Strength to Accomplish the Task."

"Oh, as to that, I'll Lend you a Hand," cheerfully replied Hercules, and he seized the Log and Moved it into the Position desired.

Returning over the same course a week later, he found the same Woodman again Idle, and to His Inquiries the man Replied:

"I was Waiting for you to Return and Move another Log for me."

Moral—He who Helps the man who can Help himself does him an injury.

THE ANT AND THE BEETLE.

One day while the Ant was rolling a grain of corn over the ground a beetle happened along and inquired:

"My Industrious Friend, why all this Labor?"

"I am Working to get this Grain of Corn into my Storehouse for the Winter. I must have a store laid by or I shall Starve."

"But how Foolish to Work so hard for it! You don't see me sweating under the collar, and yet I get along as well as most Insects."

"Yes, you are all right now because it is Summer, but wait until the Winter comes on. If you are Idle now you will Perish then."

"Thanks, my dear Ant, but don't worry over the undersigned. Call on me about the middle of January."

Time passed on. The Ant Worked Industriously to lay by a Store, and as the winter came on and she was congratulating herself on her Foresight and Prudence, the Beetle came that way. He was fat and sleek and in fine spirits, and he halted to say:

"Mourning, Old Economy. How goes it?"

"I have two kinds of Eatables laid by for the winter," replied the Ant, "while you"——

"While I am located in the Governor's Kitchen for the next six months, and count on no less than seven kinds of Food per day."

"But how is that?"

"Simply that I work with my mouth, while you work with your muscles. I Talk Politics, while you talk Corn."

Moral—Let's all Talk. Politics.—Detroit Free Press.

TRIMBLE & MANN.

—The Park Dramatic Club is making all the necessary preparations for a grand picnic on the 4th of July. Both the speaking and music are expected for the occasion.

—Hon. Orlando Harman returned to this city Wednesday night. He reports that he was well received in the West, especially the people about Colorado Springs which is now his home.

—The Electric Light company has erected a fine warehouse that is also temporarily used for an office as the increase of engines and dynamos has necessitated the removal of the office from the station.

STAR OFFICE TELEPHONE NUMBER 51.

—Brother Matthias, of the Galion Inquirer, was in the city a short time Monday.

—Miss Ida Bowers is visiting at the home of relatives at Wyandot, where she will spend the summer.

—Dr. J. Copeland, the veteran physician and well known newspaper correspondent, was over from LaRue today.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Harraman returned home Monday, after a couple of days' visit with relatives near Big Island.

—Joe Wall was up from Richwood today, on his way to Cleveland to attend the meeting of the Ohio Railway Telegraphers.

—The new residence of Charles Lotze, on east South street, is nearing completion, and when finished will be one of the neatest on that street.

—A couple of prominent young men of this city were arrested on Monday for squirrel hunting in Richland township. They were fined $15 and costs each.

—Remember the Bee Line excursion to Cleveland tomorrow. New York vs. Cleveland for lovers of base ball. Reclining chair cars will run with the train, and seats therein cost but 50 cents extra.

—Ta ka kake, the great substitute for buckwheat flour, new stock just arrived. It makes the best griddle cakes in the world. It makes the best gems and muffins. Try it. For sale by Coffy & Stone. [18 t5

—Messrs. L. Hubley, J. Whalen and R. Robbins and ladies, of Galion, were the guests of W. Hubley Monday, and returned home accompanied by Mrs. W. Hubley, who will visit a short time in that city.

—The horse attached to Thew & Manz's delivery wagon created some excitement on south Main street Monday morning by a short runaway. The horse became frightened at some object in the road and ran a short distance when he was captured. No damage was done.

—The German Methodist Missionary society gave an interesting entertainment on Monday evening, according to a very pleasing program, which consisted of speaking and delightful music, both vocal and instrumental. A social followed, in which all enjoyed themselves greatly.

—Jake Wilt and the cook at the Grand indulged too freely in intoxicants and displayed a desire to paint the town red Monday evening. The cook is now the guest of Marshal Redd at the city prison on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

—It is rumored that a prominent young railroad man, formerly of this city, but who has been in the West for the past few months, arrived in the city Monday evening and will be united in marriage Wednesday to one of Marion's fairest daughters. The contracting parties will leave immediately for their future home in the far West.

A committee, consisting of H. B. Hane, H. N. Love and V. E. Dombaugh, was appointed to draft constitution and bylaws, and to report at an adjourned meeting to be held at City Hall, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

—Thompson's ten cent show, the big Barnum of all dime shows, will pitch its tents in Marion June 20th, on Oak street, near Prendergast lumber yard. They come well recommended, as they give a first class performance, introduce better general performers than many fifty cent shows. So go early and take the little ones, and secure a comfortable seat to this moral show, on June 20th. Admission only 10 cents. 4t

—We have another communication from Caledonia on the school board controversy. This, however, we do not care to publish. A new superintendent has been elected and nothing can restore Mr. Ranck to his place this year. We sincerely regretted the unjust dismissal of so worthy a man, but since the situation has reached the stage it has, nothing is more wise than keeping still. If the people are opposed to the directors they have only to bide their time to get even.

—The Herber mill, now owned and under the management of Darmody & McClure, has again resumed business, after having been closed down for a period of several weeks, undergoing a thorough remodeling. These two enterprising gentlemen have now, without a doubt, one of the finest mills in the state. They have torn out all the old machinery and replaced it with the latest improved. The short system is the one which they now have in use, and the improved method gives the best of satisfaction.

—Among the accomplishments of modern times is the ability to write one's name so no one can read it. To gain this end it may be necessary to do considerable practicing, but time, perseverance and effort will develop a chirography in the writing of your name that will be something little short of miraculous. Having reached the point where your signature becomes totally illegible you may consider yourself accomplished, and at every hotel you leave traces of your eccentricity, greatness and claims to distinction. A common method with the modern crank in writing his name on the hotel register is to appropriate two lines of space for his illustrious signature, making the letters very high and narrow, run together in such a manner as to resemble a tuft of tall bulrushes growing in a swamp.

—The following C. and A. appointments are announced, and become effective from this date: H. D. Hamilton, paymaster for receiver, vice S. W. VanCleve, resigned. F. A. Balme, acting car accountant, vice E. B. Guthrie, resigned.

—Miss Emma Lovett is in the city for a short time and will give lessons in oil wash painting. A sample of her work may be found at the Bee Hive store. Persons desiring lessons will inquire at her rooms, on north West street, at the residence of J. A. Jacoby, third house north of railroad, west side. 18t2

—S. W. Holmes, a gentleman related and well known to many Marionites, died at his home in Upper Sandusky on Monday morning, aged 62 years. The deceased was a son of Samuel Holmes, who originally surveyed Marion and Marion county, and who was numbered among the early substantial settlers.

—Joe M. Blair, of Caledonia, and Miss Laura Atlee, of Knots, Ind., were married on Wednesday of last week at the home of the lady's parents. Joe and his wife arrived in this city Monday and were guests of his brother, Will J., and wife until this afternoon, when they left for Caledonia, expecting to make that place their future home.

—Fred Wood, who is the guest of Dr. Wiant, on south East street, entertained a party of friends, who were fortunate enough to be in the neighborhood, Monday evening with some excellent music on a harp guitar and banjo. He is noticed as a master of these instruments and has been awarded numerous prizes in contests with the best musicians of the country.

—No man ever departed from home in better spirits than George Schweinfurth. The party of friends at the depot to see George and his friends off was very large and the friendly expressions of interest in the voyage would tend to impress any departing citizen. Mr. Schweinfurth says he never knew he had so many inquiring friends until it was announced that he would depart for Europe.

—The Conemaughs and Johnstowns, with a few vacancies filled as best they could be, played a second game of ball on Monday. And the Conemaughs were defeated over downing their rivals to the extent of thirty-four to twenty. The score itself indicates what a magnificent game was played. Three home runs were made without hitting the ball and every man who reached first base scored excepting once, when a miraculous double play was made.

—The Marion County Soldiers' Association elected the following officers last Saturday: Clark Dix, president; I. B. King, secretary, and John Wilcraft treasurer. The Marion County Battalion G. A. R. elected the following officers: W. C. Rapp, colonel; Clark Dix, adjutant; of Cooper Post, No. 117; A. C. Mounts, Prospect; J. B. Corban, major; Waldo, I. T. Martin, Green Camp, and S. N. Evans, Marion, aide-de-camp, and I. W. Bethards, Agosta, inspector.

—A special from Kenton says: Today took place the largest reunion in the history of Hardin county. The log cabin and hard cider reminiscences of the campaign of 1840, revived by the past presidential convention, caused the pioneers of Hardin county to resolve to build an old time log cabin after the Cobb style on the county fair grounds at this reunion. During the past winter each township in the county decreed its quota of the material necessary, and today there were about twenty-five hundred people present to witness and take a hand in the novel undertaking. Old men from each township took their turn in carrying up a corner" to the songs and oldtime hard cider there was raised a large cabin under the "old time style."

—Huntington Democrat: "Among the newspaper reporters cordially detested is one who begs that some particular absurdity may be, as he terms it, "written up," and afterwards, when the reporter, possibly at the expense of much trouble and hard work, has complied with the request, coolly professes to have no interest in the matter, no thanks to give. He is a common pest. Every reporter of a year's experience has met him. Not long ago a gentleman in our city with virtuous indignation denounced as a friend of the people that we expose a particular outrage. Some days afterward a reporter met the man who had asked to have the outrage laid open and was surprised because we had not done so. He alluded to the matter. The writer asked him if he had seen the article in question and he replied 'No, I don't read your paper!' He is equally as great a fool as the man who sends in anonymous communications exposing particular acts of offenders and outrages."
